

New Fellow Spotlight

Angela Eikenberry

Dr. Eikenberry's research has been featured on National Public Radio's All Things Considered and in the Stanford Social Innovation Review. She recently co-edited a textbook on nonprofit management: Reframing Nonprofit Management: Democracy, Inclusion, and Social Change (Melvin & Leigh, 2018) and is currently President of the Association for Research on Nonprofit Organizations and Voluntary Action (ARNOVA).

What are you most looking forward to as a NAPA Fellow?

I am looking forward to getting involved in the work of the Academy, particularly related to the Grand Challenges. I am passionate about protecting and advancing democracy, fostering social equity, and ensuring environmental sustainability.

I hope I can contribute in some small ways to helping meet these challenges.

What inspires you during these challenging times?

I have been inspired by the public servants, teachers, nurses, and other essential workers who have kept things going so many of us can stay home. I've also been inspired by public health, environmental, and social justice advocates who push us to do better and be better in the face of COVID, climate crisis, and racism.

Who are your professional role models?

I get to work every day with students and colleagues who are dedicated to public service and making our city, state, country, and world better.
